Meeting Report

Executive Summary

The meeting discussed the recent incident involving an individual who was chased on an ATV. The incident has raised several questions about how the chase began, how the suspect's location was obtained, and how the search for the suspect was conducted.

Key Topics

1. Initial Chase: The individual who was chased on the ATV reported that they had never heard of any law enforcement involvement with their trip before, despite having siblings who were also in law enforcement.

A 911 call was received by dispatch at 12:59 a.m., which claimed to have located the suspect behind a church down the road from the crash site. However, it is unclear how the caller obtained this information.

2. Location of the Suspect: A 911 call was received by dispatch at 12:59 a.m., which claimed to have located the suspect behind a church down the road from the crash site. However, it is unclear how the caller obtained this information.

The search for the suspect was led by first responders, who set up their own rings and began searching in the area. However, there were three unusual aspects to the search: (1) the location of the suspect's

3. Search Effort: The search for the suspect was led by first responders, who set up their own rings and began searching in the area. However, there were three unusual aspects to the search: (1) the location of the suspect's who set up their own rings and began searching in the area. However, there were three unusual aspects to the search: (1) the location of the suspect's suspect's vehicle made no sense, with the road winding through forest woods ■[5D■[K woods; (2) the ATV stopped suddenly, which seemed out of place given its sp ■[2D■[K speed; and (3) the lack of any witnesses or evidence regarding the caller w ■[1D■[K who reported the suspect's location.

4. Phone Calls: Several phone calls were made during the incident, includin ■[8D■[K including a call from an unknown number claiming to have information about ■[K the suspect's location.

Action Items

1. Investigate how the initial chase began and how the suspect's location w ■[1D■[K was obtained.

2. Review records of individuals with the last name "Binom" in the area to ■[K

see if any connections can be made to law enforcement or other individuals ■[K involved in the incident.

3. Follow up on leads regarding the caller who reported the suspect's locat ■[5D■[K location.

like pretty small community like why is there so much no idea what this is I don't know I mean one thing that makes the tax see like there from trip right is that he mentions his siblings by name but he is a major no one trips brother I write so it's I know it's weird and he also says that in the three years with the department he had never heard of any law enforcement involvement with my trips and both he and mine have insisted they had no idea who's on that four-wheeler when the chase began except that why did Brownshaw call Gill at around 121 saying that deputy's were looking for him oh yeah obviously this is he during the trip's appearance well by the time by the beginning of our interview there's an explanation apparently at 1259 a.m. dispatch received a lot of his call someone who said that they knew the individual on the four-wheeler was trip and they had his location the caller said that he was spotted behind a church that was down the road from the crash site like where were they to do stop wait just like a random call like from someone and this was like no right this wasn't like an alert that like no although no one knew that they were looking for someone it's just a random call saying like I don't know if he needs to know this but trip is out behind his church and by the way this is that one o'clock in the morning to your point like yes you might have heard some like there's like some sort of like motion but it's not like the number is like statewide alert but there's no news about the difference in nothing there's a 911 call someone saying that the old year's the person you're looking for how do they even know that? that's exactly what I was just saying and here's what's things about this people anything about who this caller was for how they knew it was trip and that all the materials that you see they will not reveal who called and they say it's because the caller wanted to remain anonymous but like it makes zero sense like don't need to protect the witness here it's just straight forward is it just like something to witness and everyone is saying like just tell us in the call there's weird stuff in the beginning like this case has got traction in the community that one person could probably solve a lot where are they? also this isn't like a neighborhood no it's just like reminding me of like where I grew up right where there's just like a land some trees and a couple houses here but not like on top of each other and you're really just a few property problems we literally just three that are even in like a half mile of the church with this

caller saying that he's in like the woods spot and by the way one of those people claims that they were even holding that guy so who called? the people that trip was writing this like when they've told Kenny who was with them like I actually stopped them I'm sure they would have like given trips and given the opportunity but Kenny didn't stick around it seems like one trip like takes off and then like everything happens kind of like the binom comes up he takes off Kenny like jumps back in his park basically tells these other guys to go home and Jennifer says that he doesn't think any of these people were the ones to go but he wanted me to something weird I don't know how common like the binom last name is in this part of Arkansas the three houses that I mentioned like in the only places that are in this area it's tied to someone with the lasting binom but here's a caveat like we pull the bunch of records I can't tie any of those binom to deputate binom oh so it might just be like the weirdest coincidence of the century so got all the time call of that onto my week one number two so we don't know why the chase a non-miss person calls into iK and she has the kid that they're looking for like you know why or how they know that so Brad job calls to kill all Jennifer is on the phone with trip parents tell trip or yourself and he says he's gonna start walking toward the blue light and she can see from wherever he has to send they get the weird text from him but when they get out of the location where his phone is asking there is no end no one so they had to start searching themselves right before we're on for his dad I told you he's set up his own ring who knows what he's doing now one's other first responders showed up they began guiding the search and setting up their own rings but there were three weird things about this search one the location of trips things that are fed makes no sense so the road that they're on or now it is a small road forest woods on either some few houses they're traveling east in left or right they hit the berm the ATV stops and it actually like turns never to another leasing tread runs into the woods just more
